The Merchant Who Advertises Is Working For YOU

The non-advertising merchants of this city do not seek your patronage, your attention or favor—so why should you confer them? The progressive merchants pays attention to YOU, thus deserving to have YOUR attention in return. They are "on their metal" all the time to secure values for you that will stand inspection—that will stand ADVERTISING.

For the fact that he advertises places upon the merchant the necessity to "make good"—to meet live competition—to so wisely buy as to be able to sell to your profit as well as his own. He is placed under a perpetual test—and he must emerge always with your increasing friendship. He must work for YOU—with your approval ever in mind. He must find bargains for you—extra value things for you; he must protect you on styles, on qualities, on prices.

He is enlisted in your service. And the non-advertising merchant is NOT

RETURNS FROM FLORIDA TRIP

Mr. Vic Bloomfield Reports Fine Time And Good Fishing—Buys Winter Home.

Mr. Vic Bloomfield returned from Daytona, Fla., Thursday night, where he has been several weeks, recuperating. Mr. Bloomfield shows that he has been in a warm climate and exposed to the hot rays of the sun a great deal as he is very much sunburned.

Mr. Bloomfield was very favorably impressed with Daytona and enjoyed his stay very much. Daytona is on the beach and has a population of about 5,500. It is a great place for automobiles as the roads are good and Mr. Bloomfield says there are any number of them there.

While on his visit Mr. Bloomfield bought him a winter home in Daytona. The place is situated in one of the prettiest parts of the city and has an orange grove with about one hundred trees in it. The trees are now bearing and he has sold the entire crop to the hotel in that city. A frame house is now on the lot, but it is Mr. Bloomfield's intention to tear it down at once, and build him a handsome winter home.

Mr. Bloomfield does not claim to be much of a fisherman, but fishing is good and while there, he with Mr. Resin Scobee, who was there at the same time, fished quite a good deal, not so much for the fish but just to pass the time away. One day he says they had fished all day and had only been getting a few small ones, but about four o'clock in the afternoon their luck changed and he got a 52-inch trout on his hook which took about seven men to pull it out. It weighed about forty pounds and he says it made a meal for fifty or sixty guests at the hotel. Mr. Bloomfield says you do not have to believe this fish story, unless you want to.

MONTGOMERY JAILER FALLS OVER A CLIFF

Charles T. Wilson Drops Forty Feet Dislocating Shoulder and Sustaining Severe Bruises.

MT. STERLING, Ky., March 26.—County Jailer, Charles T. Wilson had a narrow escape from death last evening. While walking on the Fitzpatrick farm, near Howards Mill, Jailer Wilson stumbled his toe and fell over a cliff a distance of about forty feet. He was rendered unconscious and resuscitated after about twenty minutes.

He was brought to town by Dave Fox and after an examination by Dr. Willis it was found that his left shoulder was dislocated and his arm and side badly bruised. His condition is quite serious and he is suffering intense pain. Jailer Wilson's escape from instant death was miraculous.

Police Arrest a Fugitive.

Policeman Turner and Jailer Charles Wilson arrested here yesterday and lodged in jail a negro named William Foster, who is wanted at Carlisle, on the charge of cutting another negro in that place Sunday. The officers will return Foster to Carlisle. When arrested by officer Turner, Foster admitted his guilt.

MRS. MARY D. FARMER, MURDERESS, WHO IS SENTENCED TO DIE IN THE ELECTRIC CHAIR.

Governor Charles E. Hughes of New York having refused to extend clemency in the case of Mrs. Mary D. Farmer, the woman probably will be put to death in Auburn prison some day during the week of March 29. Mrs. Farmer and her husband were convicted of the murder of Mrs. Sarah Brennan near Watertown, and both were sentenced to death. The woman's sentence was affirmed by the court of appeals, but her husband's case is still pending before that tribunal. Mrs. Farmer will be the second woman to go to the electric chair in New York. Mrs. Martha Place was put to death in Sing Sing prison on March 20, 1899. Theodore Roosevelt was governor at that time and refused to interfere.

RECOMMENDS RAISING STANDARD OF THE WINCHESTER HIGH SCHOOL

Prof. Shipp Says Graduates Should Be Able To Enter College Without Further Preparation—School Census To Be Taken.

The Board of Education held its regular monthly meeting Thursday night. The members present were, J. N. Hisle, H. W. Serviner, W. A. Adams, J. B. Cornett, Harry Eton, N. K. Foster, C. H. Rees and Zena Bruce. In the absence of the chairman—G. W. Strother, who is ill, Mr. J. N. Hisle was elected chairman pro tem.

Mr. J. B. Cornett was appointed Census Taker for the white children and Sallie Mae Butts for the colored children for the year 1909.

A committee was appointed to investigate the matter of purchasing a lot adjoining the Washington street building so that the grounds can be enlarged. The lot that they are investigating faces on Highland street.

A report showed that there are now thirty-eight paid pupils from the county now in school.

Prof. Shipp stated that owing to the crowded condition of the schools more teachers were needed and recommended that two more be employed for the term of 1909-10. He also recommended that the standard be raised so that a graduate from the High School could enter college without further preparation.

A committee was appointed to confer with a committee from the Christian church in regard to cutting the Hickman street hill which they think will be a great improvement.

NO OPPOSITION TO JUDGE J. H. EVANS

I. Briniger Says He Could Have Won in a Walk, But Expenses Were Too Heavy.

It now seems possible that the present County Judge—J. H. Evans, will have no opposition in his race for re-nomination to the office which he now holds. Mr. I. Briniger, who has been the only one to announce against him withdrew Friday morning.

Mr. Briniger says that he felt sure he could win the race in a walk as he had many loyal friends but that he was not able to stand the heavy entrance fee and other expenses attached to campaigning.

SIGNS GOOD

The management has been in correspondence with him for sometime and are much elated over landing him. He will leave Detroit April 8th. When manager Horn secures the Southern League pitcher, that he is after, the team will be completed.

INSTALLS A NEW PLANT

George Brothers Make Own Light and Have Put in Water System of Their Own.

George Brothers have just completed overhauling and remodeling the St. George Hotel and now have one of the most complete and up-to-date hotels in the State.

They have installed two ten-horsepower Hagan engines and two dynamos which makes the lights for the entire building. The capacity of their light plant is 250 lights. The engines are so arranged that both can be run if necessary, or just one as the occasion demands. Usually in the forepart of the night when the load is heavy, they run both, but later use only one.

They also have the plant so arranged, that if one machine breaks down, they can change to the other and in this way will never be out of lights.

They have also installed a complete water system to be used in case of fire. The hydrants are so arranged that water can be thrown fifty feet from the building in any direction. On the roof they have placed a water tower so that the upper part can be flooded in a few minutes. The building is heated by steam and has a telephone system throughout.

ARE TAKEN TO PENNSYLVANIA

Whita Kidnappers Waive Extradition and Return to Sharon Thursday Night.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 26.—Waiving extradition rights, James H. Boyle and the woman who claims to be his wife, the kidnappers of "Billy" Whita, accompanied Pennsylvanians to Sharon last evening. They were in a special car.

The prisoners will be given hearings before Justice J. J. Gilbert at once. The Mercer county grand jury convenes the third Monday in April and court opens April 19.

Despite most vigorous "sweating," the police were unable to pierce the veil that conceals the identity of the woman in the case.

In Bitter Fight.

SHARON, Penn., March 26.—Mercer county, Penn., and Cuyahoga, Ohio, are just now engaged in a bitter fight over the right to try Mrs. Helen Boyle, the woman in the case of the kidnapping of Willie Whita.

According to leading attorneys, Mrs. Boyle cannot be placed on trial in Pennsylvania for kidnapping. It is said she committed no crime in this county and that the only charge on which she can be held is conspiracy. She may be returned and tried in Ohio, if not in Pennsylvania, for kidnapping.

Citizens of Sharon are so incensed by the case that they are demanding that the death penalty be meted out to the prisoners.

IS MUCH BETTER.

The many friends of Mr. John R. Pace will be glad to know that he will soon be able to be out after four weeks' illness.

Bell 'Phones No. 91.

FRIDAY, MARCH 26, 1909.

THE MAINE.

We picked up a paper the other day illustrating the embarkation of the American troops from Cuba and in the foreground was an outline of the ill-fated Maine. We saw the other day two postcards which are sold in the stores of Havana, are bought by tourists and mailed to the four quarters of the globe.

No more stinging comment was ever written to characterize a sore spot than is contained in two lines, written by an American army officer in Cuba, in explanation of those two picture postal cards.

One showing the ill-fated Maine entering Havana harbor, bears the inscription: "This Ship Once Belonged to the United States."

The other illustrating a mass of gnarled wreckage, carries another message: "This Wreck is the Property of the Republic of Cuba."

The late Congress which appropriated millions on millions for battleships and seacoast defenses, found no time to set aside a modest sum of money for the recovery and honorable interment of the bodies of the crew of the Maine still imprisoned in the wreck in Havana harbor.

The memories of the Spanish war are still fresh in our minds. All recall the thrill of honor that followed the story of the wreck of the Maine.

We ourselves were on the Pacific Coast during the Spanish war. We recall the fierce exaltation of our people when they assembled by the hundreds of thousands to see the first California Volunteers leave on their sea voyage of thousands of miles to the distant Philippine. The tears came to our eyes as we saw the troops of Kentucky and of Tennessee march through the streets of San Francisco and remembered that they were Americans all going forth to die, if necessary, for the dear old flag. And the common slogan of all was, "Remember the Maine."

We arose during that memorable time and with countless thousands through the length and breadth of this goodly land stood with uncovered head when "America" was played by the band.

But no Star Spangled Banner covers the pall of the Maine's dead; no plot in Arlington Cemetery is set aside for the men who yielded up their lives under the flag. Unhonored and unsung, they rest in the wreckage in Havana harbor, food for the fishes and forgotten by a "grateful country."

When Cervera came to die the other day, among his last thoughts were gratitude and appreciation of the kindness and courtesy of our people following the destruction and capture of his fleet at Santiago. We have time for the living but not for the dead. It is shameful.

GOOD BUSINESS SENSE.

The action taken by the Fiscal Court this morning in regard to the Treasurership of the county, and the building of fire proof vaults for the court house, cannot be too highly commended, and in regard to the latter much credit is to be given to the Commercial Club.

In January, 1906, the President of the Commercial Club, in his annual message to that body, recommended that they take this question up with the Fiscal Court and urge them to build fire proof vaults for the court house, and pointed out the dangers which menaced our records. The committee appointed by the Commercial Club has discussed this matter with the members of the Fiscal Court at each term since, and in January of this year, President Bowen again called the attention of the club to this matter and requested the committee to appear before the Fiscal Court and urge that the vaults be built.

The Fiscal Court has made an investigation of the condition of the present vaults in the court house and has come to the conclusion that it is time more spacious fire proof vaults with better ventilation and light be built and by proper order this morning, appointed the County Judge to secure plans and specifications for the building of such and report to the court at a meeting to be called in April or May.

While this action is of much importance to the county, yet the maneuver in which they disposed of the treasuryship stamps our Fiscal Court as being composed of business financiers, the superior of which is possessed by no other county in the State. For years, the office of treasurer of the county has been given to first one bank, then another, in rotation, and for this appointment the banks thus appointed have paid to the county $150 per annum and a few years ago the amount was $25.

But at this term the Fiscal Court determined to let this office to the highest and best bidder and this morning the bids from all four banks were opened. The Peoples Bank bid $1,503, the Citizens National Bank, $1,531, the Clark County National Bank, $1,890 and the Winchester Bank, $2,035 per annum for a term of two years.

This shows what the treasuryship of Clark county is worth to the banks and to secure this money for the taxpayers of the county is a piece of business sagacity which should commend itself to every other county in the State and not only to the counties, but the example set by this Fiscal Court should be followed by the city fathers of Winchester and the Board of Council should see that the treasuryship of the city is sold in the same manner to the highest and best bidder. The county has picked up $2,035 per annum for two years by its business acumen and the city should dispose of its treasuryship likewise. If the city treasuryship is of value to the bank holding it, it should pay for same and the money thus derived from its sale would be for the good of all the tax payers alike.

We again commend the action of our Fiscal Court and recommend it to the other counties and City Councils throughout the State for emulation.

VALUABLE POSTAL INFORMATION.

J. S. McKirley, of Orient, Ohio, president of the Ohio State League of Postmasters, has prepared and issued the following information with regard to the postal service and how the people may help:

When you address your letters or cards with a lead pencil see that the address is plainly written. Most letters lost are improperly addressed; you had better use a pen and ink.

When you address a letter see that you spell the name of the town correctly. Many post offices have similar names. Don't write Cin. for Cincinnati, or Col. for Columbus.

When you address a letter or card leave room for the stamp and postmark in the upper right hand corner. Postmarks often blur your address.

Do not put writing in newspapers or packages; if you do the matter becomes first-class mail and you must pay letter postage—two cents an ounce, or you are liable to a fine of $10.

Written or typewritten letters placed in unsealed envelopes are subject to the same rate of postage as when sealed—two cents an ounce.

Post cards in transparent envelopes will go at the rate of one cent if unsealed, provided there is nothing more than the address of the one to receive it and the name of the sender. Stamp must be placed on envelope and not on card when enclosed in transparent envelope.

Post cards containing writing and inclosed in transparent envelope, whether sealed or unsealed, must bear a two-cent stamp and the stamp must be placed on the envelope instead of the card.

Send money by post office order, for if it is sent in this manner, or lost in the mails the Post Office Department will issue you another order.

Send valuable papers or merchandise by first-class registered mail, for the Post Office Department will make good any loss in the mail not exceeding $25.

Patrons of postoffice can get better service by renting a box. If you have a box the postmaster's work is lightened, and your mail is not handled or looked over like it is in the general delivery. The Post Office Department makes great conveniences for you, so do not hesitate to help in return.

When you mail a letter or package see that it is substantially done up. The rapid handling of the mails sometimes destroys a poor envelope or covering of a package, and your mail is thus lost.

You should put your name and postoffice on the package, and if not delivered it will be returned to you, but you will have to repay the postage (unless it is first-class.)

When you move to another post office notify the postmaster from our former post office to forward our mail and notify the publishers of your papers that you have changed your postoffice.

Letters from the pension agency can be delivered only to the person whom addressed or to some member of his or her family especially authorized to receive the mail.

If you have friends visiting you, have their mail sent in your care.

Use an ordinary size envelope and have on it your return card; if it is not delivered it will be returned to you, and not go to the Dead Letter Office, as thousands of letters do.

If you receive a letter by mistake and it is not yours, don't open it, but return it promptly; and if you do open write on envelope "opened by mistake," and sign your name.

Inheritance.

No more absurd statement ever came from the lips of man than the one which declares "there is no inheritance." You had might as well say that no man ever left a son a fortune as to say that no man ever transmitted his virtues and vices to his children. But when a son inherits a fortune it is not that fact, but the use he makes of it, which counts to his credit or discredit.

If your father left you a gambling house or a dive, and you continue to draw revenue from them, you are slaying your own soul and helping to slay others.

If you turn them into model tenement houses or establish kindergartens and bathe or other moral institutions in their places, you are building your own character.

If you inherit a violent temper and indolence from your parents and make that an excuse for your disagreeableness and depravity, you are merely allowing the gambling den and dive to cumber the ground of your mind domain.

If you control those tendencies with your God-given will you can clear out the unwholesome territory and make it a garden spot of beauty.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Kissenger entertained the members of the Fiscal Court in a royal manner at the County Farm, Thursday.

A substantial dinner of turkey, ham, chicken, oysters, salmon croquettes, chicken salad, salmon salad, potato salad, cranberries, prunes, celery, pickles, deviled eggs, jellies, baked apples, baked peaches, corn, sweet potatoes, Irish potatoes, macaroni, muffins and biscuits, milk, coffee, custard, banana cream and eight varieties of cake, was served. A huge bowl of frappe was kept to serve during the day.

"It may not be serious after all," Cowley said with tardy reassurance, "but there's danger, and I thought I'd let you know. I'm sending a pretty good story to-night about it; they'll cover the Chicago end from the office."

"But they were all for it," Vernon muttered.

"Oh, well, you know they never took the thing very seriously. Of course they passed it in the house just to line up old man Ames for the apportionment bill. They didn't think it would amount to anything."

"Yes, I know—but Maria Burley Greene—"

"Well, she's a pretty woman; that's all."

"You bet she is," said Vernon, "and she's down here again to-morrow, too."

"Will she?" said Cowley, eagerly, with his strange smile.

"Yes—but, look here, Charlie!" Vernon exclaimed, "don't you go mixing me up with her, now, understand?"

"Oh, I understand," said Cowley, and he laughed significantly.

When Vernon reached the hotel he set to work in earnest. He tramped about half the night, until he had seen every senator who could be found. He noted change in them; if he did not find them hostile he found many of them shy and reluctant. But when he went to his room he had enough promises to allay his fears and to restore, in a measure, his confidence, and he fell asleep thinking of Maria Greene, happy in the thought that she would be there with her charms to offset the vision, of course; the very spiritual aversion of those women to such a thought would have prevented it, certainly.

In point of fact, his regard in an instant had ceased to be general and had become specific, having Amelia for its objective. She sat on the right of her commander, rather timid aside; and she seemed spiritually to snuggle more closely under her protecting shadow with each passing moment. She seemed to be half frightened, and had the look of a little girl who is about to cry. Her gray figure, with its hat of violets above her dark hair, was, on the instant, half pathetic to Vernon. She sat facing him, her face downcast.

There was no conversation at that table; it was to be seen at a glance indeed that among those ladies there would be need for none, all things having been prearranged for them. Vernon noted that Amelia seemed to him more dainty, more fragile than she had ever been before, and his heart surged out toward her. Then she raised her eyes slowly, and held him, until from their depths she stabbed with one swift glance, a glance full of all accusation, indictment and reproach. The stab went to his heart with a pain that made him exclaim. Then perceiving that the complicating moments were flying, he rose hastily, and with half an apology to Miss Greene, he rushed across the dining room.

CHAPTER XI.

None of the ladies relaxed at Vernon's approach, Mrs. Overman Hodge-Lathrop least of all. On the contrary she seemed to swell into proportions that were colossal and terrifying, and when Vernon came within her sphere of influence his manner at once subdued itself into an apology.

"Why, Amelia—Mrs. Hodge-Lathrop!" he cried, "and Mrs. Standish, Mrs. Barbourton, Mrs. Trales, Mrs. Langdon—how do you do?"

He went, of course, straight to Mrs. Overman Hodge-Lathrop's side, and he tried to take the hands of both women at once. Amelia gave him hers coldly, without a word and without a look. He grew weak, inane, and laughed uneasily.

"Delightful morning," he said, "this country air down here is—"

"Morley," said Mrs. Overman Hodge-Lathrop, severely, "take that seat at the foot of the table."

He obeyed, meekly. The ladies, he thought, from the rustle of their skirts, withdrew themselves subtly. The only glances they vouchsafed him were sidelong and disapproving. He found it impossible to speak, and so waited. He could not recall having experienced similar sensations since those menacing occasions of boyhood when he had been sent to the library to await his father's coming.

"Delightful morning, indeed!" Mrs. Overman Hodge-Lathrop said, in her most select tones. "Delightful morning to bring us poor old ladies down into the country!"

"Bring you down!" ejaculated Vernon.

"Morley," she said, "I don't wish to have one word from you, not one; do you understand? Your talent for speech has caused trouble enough as it is. Lucky we shall be if we can undo tinued, "you needn't look. It wouldn't be the first time, as you well know—and it isn't so many years ago—and I have your mother's full permission, too."

The chain of ladylike sympathy that passed about the table at this declaration was broken only when its ends converged on Vernon. Even then they seemed to pinch him.

"Your poor, dear mother," Mrs. Overman Hodge-Lathrop went on, "insisted, indeed, on coming down herself, but I knew she could never stand such a trip. I told her," and here Mrs. Overman Hodge-Lathrop paused for an instant, "I told her that I thought I could manage."

There was a vast significance in this speech.

The waiter had brought the substantial to the ladies, and Mrs. Overman Hodge-Lathrop began eating determinedly.

social influence of Mrs. Overman Hodge-Lathrop.

CHAPTER X.

Vernon went down to breakfast the next morning wearing the new summer clothes his tailor had sent to him from Chicago the day before. He had a flower in his buttonhole; a red rose, indeed, showing his colors for the final triumphant day.

The rotunda of the hotel, swept by the litter of the night before, was clean and cool, and the morning air of a perfect day came in refreshingly at the open doors. The farmer members, confirmed in the habit of early rising, were already sauntering aimlessly about, but otherwise statesmen still slumbered, tired out by their labors of the night before.

Vernon, in the nervous excitement which arouses one at the dawn of any day that is to be big with events, had risen earlier than was his wont. He hastened into the dining room, and there, at the first table his eye alighted on, sat Maria Burley Greene. She saw him at once, for she faced the door, and she greeted him with a brilliant smile. With springing step he rushed toward her, both hands extended in his eagerness. She half rose to take them; their greeting silenced the early breakfasters for an instant. Then he sat down opposite her and leaned over with a radiant face near to her as might be, considering the width of the tablecloth and the breakfast things between.

"And so you're here at last!" he exclaimed.

His eyes quickly took in her toilet; remarkably fresh it was, though it had been made on the Springfield sleeper. It gave none of those evidences of being but the late flowering of a toilet that had been made the night before, as do the toilets of some ladies under similar circumstances. She wore this morning a suit of brown, tailored faultlessly to every flat seam and a little turban to match it. Beside her plate lay her veil, her gloves, and a brass tagged key. And her face, clear and rosy in its rich beauty, was good to look upon. The waiter had just brought her strawberries.

D. D. PEELE WRITES OF KENTUCKY WESLEYAN

Deprecates Any Agitation of the Question of Pres. Taylor's Resignation.

At the request of a number of readers we pick up from the Sun-Sentinel of Thursday, the following letter from Mr. D. D. Peele, with the comments of Mr. Perry thereon:

Columbia, S. C.,
March 22, '09.

My Dear Mr. Perry:—The friends of the Kentucky Wesleyan College and well-wishers of Winchester have heard with deepest regret of the resignation of President Taylor. During his administration of the affairs of that institution he has more than maintained his established reputation as an educator and made for himself an influential place in the citizenship of the city. All must recognize the fact that his departure, if he and the Board of Education cannot come to terms, leaves the college for a short time at least, in a trying condition of uncertainty. The resignation of a much less important member of a college faculty always creates a break in the continuity of the work which wise authorities keep to themselves until a worthy successor has been secured, thus never allowing the confidence the public has in the school to suffer the least diminution. And the method by which the Board of Education and the Faculty of Kentucky Wesleyan College are trying to bridge the present period of uncertainty speaks well for the wisdom of those two bodies. Your energetic reporter sought interviews with both those bodies for his very interesting story on President Taylor's resignation in last week's issue of the Sun-Sentinel, with the results that Rev. Mr. Mann, of the Board, "showed much disinclination to an interview," "inquiry at the college could not verify" certain other rumors that were afloat in the city, and "the professor (Taylor) refused absolutely to be interviewed." The last quoted words are sufficient to establish even in the mind of an absolute stranger the greatest confidence in the fairness and honor of the retiring President of the college.

The motives which dictate this letter have their source solely in an interest in educational work and educational institutions everywhere, and more especially in the welfare of a college which has received the best efforts of four years of my life—an institution which has countless very warm friends in the city and county where it is located, as has been shown on many occasions, but which is likely to suffer from the misdirected efforts of a friendly public sentiment.

Does it not appeal to your wisdom, Mr. Perry, that wisdom of the Poor Richard type, which finds utterance in the Perrinwinkles and delights thousands of readers every week, that wisdom which dictated your interview in the symposium on President Taylor's resignation, rather than that which gave space for the publication of that symposium, that your reporter would have acted more wisely had he taken his cue from the silence of the authorities and, after having made that collection of opinions of the best citizens of Winchester, submitted it to the Board of Education and to President Taylor, hoping to bring them to an agreement? Would not each party have been more likely to make concessions than now that the symposium has been published? After an agreement had been reached, and it is probable that it would have been, as interesting a story could have been prepared for the press, which would have had a ring of triumph colored with the glow of bright future prospects for the institution, and therefore for the city, instead of the note of dejection and gloomy forebodings for the college which permeates every line of the published story, and which is likely to impede the authorities in their already difficult task of administering its affairs.

The motives which dictate this letter have their source solely in an interest in educational work and educational institutions everywhere, and more especially in the welfare of a college which has received the best efforts of four years of my life—an institution which has countless very warm friends in the city and county where it is located, as has been shown on many occasions, but which is likely to suffer from the misdirected efforts of a friendly public sentiment.

There is nothing that will convince a lawyer except evidence.

Now, here is some rather startling evidence of a simple home cure for eczema which convinced one lawyer, F. C. Entriiken, attorney at Moline, Ill. He tells how oil of wintergreen compound mixed with thymol and glycerine, as in D. D. Prescription, cured him in thirty days after thirty-two years of suffering.

"For 32 years," writes Attorney Entriiken, "I was troubled with eczema, scabs all over my face, body and head. I could run a hair brush over my body and the floor would be covered with scales enough to fill a basket. I tried everything—salves, internal medicine, X-Ray—all without result."

"Just a month ago I was induced to try D. D. Prescription. The itch was relieved instantly; so I continued. It is just a month now and I am completely cured. I have not a particle of itch and the scales have dropped off."

"I can only say again CURSE DISCOVERED. I am now starting all eczema sufferers on the right track." Cure after cure has been brought to our attention and always that instant relief from the awful itch.

SEED CORN.

Mr. Bamberg Gives Good Advice
Concerning its Planting and Cultivation.

Do not plant a grain of corn until the ear from which that grain came has been tested for germination strength. If you buy seed corn buy only in the ear. Don't buy shelled seed corn under any consideration. Tested corn assures a good stand; a good stand assures a good crop. It is just as easy to have a good stand as a bad one. It is cheaper to cultivate a good stand than it is to cultivate a bad one. Then why not have a good stand.

A convenient way to test corn is as follows: Make a box the size of the paper partitions of an egg case, but an inch deeper. Put in the paper partitions and fill the spaces full of clean sand. If no sand is convenient soil will answer. Rotten sawdust will do.

Joggle down what ever you use until well packed and the sand or soil is even with the tops of the paper. Give a good watering. Make a notch in the upper left hand corner of the box, so as to ascertain where work is begun. From one of the ears of corn selected for seed, take six grains from six different parts of the ear, including the butt and tip. Place those six grains flat on the sand, or soil, in the square under the notch, and mark the ear from which the grain came. No. 1. Do the same with the second ear, placing those six grains in the square under the first and mark that ear No. 2, and so on until the ears you have selected for seed are represented in the box, or boxes if more than one is necessary.

When the box is full, spread a piece of cheese cloth over the top of the grains and fill the box with sand. It will require only about half an inch of sand or soil.

Set the box in a moderately warm place out of a draft, and let it remain for 12 hours. Then bring to the light, lift off the sand and cloth to examine the grains. Save for seed only those ears of which the six grains in the box have shown a full strong germination. Those ears which have not shown a full germination should be thrown into the crib for feeding purposes.

By this simple process a perfect stand of corn may be had. After the corn is planted cultivate shallow and keep up the cultivation until in roasting.

BOTH EYES BLOWN OUT BY RAILROAD TORPEDO

Employee of the Louisville and Nashville Terribly Hurt in the Paris Yard.

PARIS, Ky., March 26.—Mit Johnson, an employee of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, lost both eyes by the explosion of a torpedo cap in the yards of the company yesterday morning. Johnson, assisted by a negro, was cleaning up rubbish about the tracks and, having set fire to a pile, was standing warming his hands when the explosion occurred. Johnson was hurried to a Lexington hospital on a special train. Flying particles of the torpedo lacerated the hands and legs of the negro.

NO TROOPS NOW ON DUTY.

Last of Night Rider Guard Ordered to Their Homes.

For the first time since the present administration took charge of affairs of the State government in December, 1907, there are no troops on duty for the purpose of suppressing "night rider" troubles growing out of differences between growers and buyers of tobacco crops.

Adjutant General Johnston yesterday ordered the last troops on duty, four privates and a non-commissioned officer, who have been stationed at Eddyville, back to their homes in Cynthiana.

Conditions have become such in the western end of the State, which has been the principal seat of disturbance throughout all the troubles, as to justify this action, the department commander believes.

SOCIETY WOMAN DIES BY GAS

Mrs. Pierre Lorillard, Jr., Kills Herself in the Bathroom of Her Home in Washington.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 26.—Mrs. Pierre Lorillard, Jr., was found dead yesterday in the bathroom of her home, No. 2030 Hillyer place, in this city.

The illuminating gas was turned on, and although Mrs. Lorillard was known to have serious heart trouble and the cause of death was heart failure, the Coroner decided that it was a case of suicide and gave a certificate to that effect.

Mrs. Lorillard's friends refuse to accept the verdict and are confident that death was due to an accident.

The death of Mrs. Lorillard was sudden and under circumstances so startling that it has caused a great shock to Washington, where she was quite as well known as in the circles of society in New York and Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorillard have lived several years in Washington, sometimes with intervals of a year between, in which they have traveled abroad. They came to Washington on January 5 to get a house for the winter and stopped for several days at the Shoreham Hotel.

They finally leased the home in Hillyer place of Joseph B. Hornblower. They entertained elegantly, and were frequent guests at the most exclusive dinners and receptions in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorillard attended a large dinner given by Mrs. Richard Towns last night.

It has been a matter of comment among those who have met Mrs. Lorillard at dinners and receptions here this winter that she appeared to be having the best time of any one present. She was noticeably cheerful and gracious. There seemed to be no cloud whatever in her sky, so far as outward appearance went.

ARBOR DAY BULLETIN.

In accordance with the recent proclamation of the Governor naming Friday, April 2, as Arbor Day and to encourage the feeling throughout the State that Arbor Day should be observed by every citizen, the Department of Education of the State, under the direction and supervision of State Superintendent, J. H. Crabb, has issued a special bulletin, entitled, "The Kentucky Arbor and Bird Day Annual."

This is the first publication of its kind ever gotten out in Kentucky and is calculated to do a great deal of good by calling the attention of the citizens throughout the State to the valuable assets Kentucky has in her trees and birds.

It is a handsome bulletin of 94 pages and profusely illustrated with colored plates and illustrations.

In the articles dealing with the history and character of the birds and forests, containing much valuable information. Suggested programs for Arbor Day exercises are also published in the Annual along with songs and poems that are appropriate to the occasion. Among these are two poems on the subject of Arbor Day, written expressly for the annual by Miss Carrie D. Nichols and Mary Scrugham, teachers in the Lexington City Schools.

The poem of Miss Nichols is of some length and treats in a beautiful manner of the Arbor Day custom.

Miss Scrugham's is an "Arbor Day Sonnet" and being brief is published in full as follows:

"Beautiful, stately and grand are the trees,
That spring from this wonderful good old earth;

To music, pleasure, musings deep they give birth.
Oft you heard them whispering gentle pleas

Against annihilation by degrees.
What if they were all consumed on the hearth?

Throughout the land there'd be a dreadful dearth,
Anywhere, everywhere, plant more trees.

That ne'er may we lack quiet, peaceful shade.
Nor e'er be without their beauty in spring;

We want luscious fruit they alone can give,
Lest the lessons they teach from memory fade,

And if there were not any other thing,
For further generations let them live."

The article on the Native Kentucky Trees was written by Prof. H. C. Carman, of State University, and gives a full account of the native trees of the State.

OPERA HOUSE

"The Cry Baby."

Carlton Guy, the star of "The Cry Baby," the popular comedy drama which will be presented at the opera house next Monday night, is one of the best known and also one of the most successful of the younger group of actors now on the American stage.

For the past half dozen years he has headed the famous Guy Stock Company, of which he is also the owner. Mr. Guy, while in stock work, drew attention to his careful, painstaking acting of every role which he undertook and these are a legion. His versatility is shown by the wide variety of characters he has played among them being the dual role in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," "D'Artagnan," in "The Three Musketeers," "Jim," in "My Jim," in "John Storm," in "The Poor Relation." "The Cry Baby" was written especially for Mr. Guy. The title of the piece being a nickname given the central figure in the play, the role taken by Mr. Guy, who has been surrounded by an exceptionally capable company. The production is mounted with all special scenery and the electrical and mechanical effects are said to be excellent.

It is a handsome bulletin of 94 pages and profusely illustrated with colored plates and illustrations.
